

Walking, talking, living doll

ALEX Cotterell will be tempted to scare passers-by in Rundle St tomorrow evening.

Alex will be among a group of models taking the place of mannequins in the shop windows of seven boutiques.

"I've never modelled as a mannequin in a shop window before," she says.

"I think it could be a little tiring standing and posing for two hours.

"However, I know that it is going to be an interesting and probably an amusing experience. I may be tempted to pull a silly face or scare someone walking past by moving when they think that I am not a real person."

The boutiques – SABA, Gorman, Morrison, Sooki, Lisa Ho, Calibre and Alannah Hill – are all tenants of the Maras Group.

Managing director Steve Maras says the event will complement Summer Fridays In The East End, a weekly program of food and entertainment in Ebenezer Place.

"Christmas is a special time of year when everyone is abuzz and we want to make shopping down Rundle St East a special ... experience," he says.

The models will showcase the boutiques' summer lines from 6pm-8pm tomorrow.

– Tim Williams

